"With their faces in the light" the British crossed the channel to fight beside the French; "with their faces in the light" the battalions charged the Ridge in the Battles of the Somme, and the thing that sent them is that which inspired the Crusaders of old, and is now calling all Americans to the conflict."

My dear Mr. Bowman:

In reply to your letter of inquiry as to what one who cannot join the Army may do to help the country, I should like to call your attention to a book just published which tells in a practical and interesting manner how the men and women of Great Britain met the problems that are now pressing upon us. I believe this book will suggest a multitude of things to you that I could not embody in a letter, and that it will be of constructive value to you and your friends who feel as you do. The title of this book is, "Britain's Civilian Volunteers". It is published by Moffat, Yard & Company of this city. The price is $1.50 Net.

This book is really a record of the British Voluntary Aid Detachment work in the war, in factories, in hospitals, at rest stations, - everywhere back of the lines and in many cases right up to the firing line. These Detachments are composed of men and women such as those you mention, and I believe that you will find it absorbing as well as instructive reading.

Very truly yours,

A. M. Bowman, Esq.,

WAR-TIME ECONOMY AND THE BOOK-TRADE

BUSINESS the country over has been slowed down by the entrance of the United States into the war, by some resulting economy campaigns, and most of all by uncertainty as to how much radical lack of wisdom Congress will show in its plans for taxation. This temporary conservatism in buying is being opposed by manufacturers and retail associations in large space displays in the daily press, window posters, circular letters and other publicity channels. The Packard Motor Car Co. is devoting generous space to such truisms as, "To provide the sinews of war we must have good business; the man who hoards his money at a time like this is the quintessence of a slacker," and "The tailor and the milliner want to subscribe to the Liberty Loan as much as you do. How can they if you withhold the business that brings them the necessary cash?" Another automobile manufacturer has used full page space for such appeals as "Don't be a Business Slacker," and "Even if America desired hard times the world would refuse her the wish. We have been conscripted as the world's kitchen, etc." "Sit Tight—Don't Be Tight," "Talk Prosperity," "Keep Things Going" are the appeals of various manufacturers and dealers in clothing and other commodities.

All this is the counterpart of the English slogan, "Business as usual." There is no doubt that there will be plenty of business in this country during the war—with the calling of two million men to the colors we are likely to have more business than we can handle. England has found, however, as we shall find—tho to a less degree owing to our position as the world's market—that war-time business paid for by war-time taxes and devoted to unproductive war-time ends is not "business as usual" and that it is both impossible and unwise to dismiss the war with a slogan. It is very easy to take the war too much for granted, and it is against this tendency that William A. Filene, head of William Filene's Sons Co., of Boston, and a director in the National Chamber of Commerce, protested in an interview this week in which he said:

"While I recognize the patriotic purpose back of the 'business as usual' slogan, as a policy I regard it as unsound. It will prolong the war and hamper the fighting effectiveness of the nation every day it is practiced. Business has but one job to-day, and that is to do the thing that will bring victory at the earliest possible moment. And business cannot serve two masters. Even before the war our productive capacity was taxed to the limit. We simply cannot fill all the added demands of war and at the same time satisfy all of the appetites of peace. Our job is the business of war, not 'business as usual.'"

The book-trade, in so far as it honestly publishes and sells only those works that are thoroly worth while, need make no excuses for itself, even under such a rigorous utilitarian program as that outlined by Mr. Filene. "Perhaps now, more than ever before," some one has said of late, "it is the duty of those who write to continue writing, more and better; and of those who read to continue reading, well and searchingly, so that our spirits may have sustenance in the great material conflict before us."

Yet, in another and very definite respect the book-trade can abundantly justify its existence at the present time, for it is—potentially at least—a central distributing agency for information regarding better business methods, better soldiering, better household economy, better everything involved in the United States's job of "the business of war." This point was emphasized by one of the speakers at the booksellers' convention who urged that dealers pay more attention this year to business and technical literature. "We must demonstrate this year," he added, "that our function is vital to the nation's economic life, that we have more to do than merely to start Browning classes." The bookseller who sells his fellow merchants such books as Nystrom's "Economics of Retailing," Fisk's "Retail Selling," Wheeler Sammons' "Keeping Up with Rising Costs" or a subscription to an important business periodical is making a definite contribution toward war-time economy. One dealer in the Middle West has secured the roster of the men from three states attending a near-by training camp and is going after this trade with military books and periodicals. The lists of the technical and medical publishers include many constructive books of a very definite timeliness. Incidentally, the dealer who refuses to push a helpful technical book at the present time because discounts are not all that he would like or a good cheap book on account of the small margin of profit is practicing a very unfortunate kind of "business as usual."

In fact, the present situation may well be made an excuse for both publisher and retailer forgetting a number of things that have become almost second nature with them. "I met the war," said Herbert Jenkins, the London publisher, in his excellent article reprinted in these columns last month, "by determining to forget all I knew about my business, and to learn afresh under the new conditions." Of course August, 1914, sales in England slumped badly, but there is nevertheless abundant evidence of the soundness of Mr. Jenkins' tactics in the fact that his firm sold 5200 books in August, 1916, for every 100 sold by him in the corresponding month in 1914. The American book-trade has been experiencing during the past month a very mild edition of the sort of thing that struck England in August, 1914, and, if it will rise to the occasion, we believe that aggressive policies such as those employed by Mr. Jenkins will bring just as tangible results and will enable it to perform an important war-time service.

MOST PUBLISHERS have tried out both of the two common varieties of book advertising men: the out-and-out advertising man, and the literary man who "slaves" over ad. copy and publicity notes all day only to rush off at 5.30 to work till midnight over his "big job," the writing of "that novel." Doubtless the ideal book advertising man lies somewhere between the two, a blending of the better qualities of both, but until this paragon is discovered the following protest of the Little Schoolmaster in Printers' Ink against the statement that the "paying kind of advertising copy cannot be written by men who write books" is not without interest: "Any sort of writing ability that a man may have is an asset to him in the advertising business, provided he has the true advertising sense along with it. It is the Schoolmaster's private opinion that Mr. H. G. Wells would make a darn good copy writer, if he could be persuaded to take up the commercial pen. At any rate, to our way of thinking, he sums up the copy case for our Eastman neighbors in Rochester pretty well in a single sentence of 'Mr. Britling.' 'It is the happy instinct of the Kodak,' runs the line from the book, 'to refuse those days that are overcast, and the photographic record of life is a chain of all its kindlier aspects.' Who will say that this lacks punch? By itself it would make a powerful little eyeful for those famous readers so prodigal of white space. At the same time, we are tempted to speculate what might have taken place had this line been submitted thru the usual channels, authorship comparatively unknown."

THE CLASSIFICATION OF BOOKSTORE STOCK BEST SUITED TO UNTRAINED EMPLOYEES

THIS PAPER WAS AWARDED THE FIRST PRIZE IN THE NEW YORK BOOKSELLERS' LEAGUE CONTEST

By WILLIAM H. ROYCE, with Gabriel Weis

ONE imperative, unalterable rule should reign in every retail bookstore, and that rule is: Never—in reply to an inquiry whether a certain book is in stock—never answer at once and peremptorily, "No." Such a reply suggests to the inquirer, immediately:

1. That the clerk does not know his stock (which is probably true).
2. That if the clerk is acquainted with the stock, he does not know where to find immediately the book asked for (which is almost sure to be true).
3. That the clerk is too lazy or too diffident to search for the book (which supposition is also within the range of probability).

And the intending customer, in no amiable frame of mind, precipitately departs from the Shop Without a System and the Clerk Without a Brain, and buys the desired volume in another store, where the salesman answers his inquiry for the book with: "I think we have it; I will see."

And while the clerk is more or less diligently and intelligently seeking for the title (in another part of the shop), the customer improves his waiting time by "browsing" among the shelves and tables within his range of vision. He is almost sure to find one or two books which he has "long been looking for"; when the clerk triumphantly (but not too quickly) returns with the desired volume, the customer has him wrap it with the books laid aside. The buyer leaves satisfied, and he will return to this shop. The salesman has sold three books instead of none; what is more important, he has gained a customer, and what is more important still, a friend. For it is an axiom of the book-trade that the more good books you sell a man, the better he will like you.

Now, this happy combination—a successful salesman and a satisfied customer—can only be brought about by a well-ordered shop, one in which the stock is so arranged that any desired item in it may be found immediately by looking for it, or in which the clerk may determine positively that the desired item is not in stock, should such be the case.

GOOD MEMORY NOT ENOUGH

A good memory is an invaluable asset in a bookstore. Old bookmen have boasted that they never forgot a book which they had once handled. Certain it is, moreover, that constant association with books develops a photograph upon the retina of the mind's eye of the exact location and appearance of a certain volume which is even apart from memory itself. But the boundless expanse of the universe of books (more than a billion books have been published) and the constant changing about by many hands renders accurate knowledge of a sizeable and ever-increasing stock an overwhelming task for even the most powerful memory, unaided by system and order.

The clerk who implies by his answer to his customer's query that he is not sure whether or not the desired book is in stock tells the exact truth. No one, trained or untrained, generally speaking, can be sure until he has ascertained by looking. Even then he cannot be positive, even with the most conscientious efforts, unless the stock is properly arranged.

Therefore, in a word, the most fundamental principle and the most important factor in the success of a bookstore, and particularly of a second-hand bookstore, is the proper arrangement of stock.

MISPLACED STOCK WORSE THAN NO STOCK

It may justly be considered that any stock which is lost sight of and which cannot readily be found is worse than no stock at all, since it produces no revenue yet occupies valuable space. The only profitable merchandise, not alone in books, but in everything else, is that which keeps moving; the only way to keep stock moving is to sell it; the only way to sell it is to supply it to those who want to buy; the only way to supply the demand is to know what you have to sell and where to find it. Therefore, arrange your stock.

This rule applies more forcibly in the book business than to any other line of trade; and yet, strange as it may seem, it is often most ill-applied in the book business. Not one bookstore in ten is much more than a heterogeneous conglomeration of waste paper. Neither the proprietor nor his assistants have anything except a remote inkling of the comprehensiveness of what their stock contains. To the majority of inquirers for books (which may be staring from the very shelves) the salesman turns a tired and fishy eye and answers "No."

Let us then arrange our book stock—arrange it so well that not only the head salesman, but also the "boss" and the office boy and even the customers themselves can find any book in the store; so well that there shall be no waste or idle stock, no dust-covered impenetrable shelves, no clogged-up bins or forgotten "junk," no toppling barricades of foot-battered "plunder," no ledges groaning with tapering piles which hide the shelves behind them. Let order and system, economy of time and space, preservation of stock and temper; and the maintenance of a pleased and growing patronage take the place of loss and confusion.

ONE SATISFACTORY BASIS FOR CLASSIFICATION

There is only one system by which the stock of a retail bookstore can be properly arranged: It must first be classified by subject; and then the volumes in each subject alphabetically arranged by authors. The arrangement of an entire stock in one alphabet, as found in some of the smaller shops in England, is certainly not advisable, as this is only an orderly state of chaos. The customer who comes to your shop to inspect your line of Americana, for instance, has neither the time nor the patience to look thru all the books you have on other subjects as well. The familiar inquiry, "What books have you on [any given topic]?" would plunge the bookseller whose stock was arranged in one conglomerate alphabet into despair. He might be able to lay his hands on a particular book, but he could not possibly bring before his customer all the books in stock on a given subject. If a buyer is interested in a certain work on Roman history, it is natural to assume that he will be interested in other works on Roman history but he will purchase only the one he asks for if that is the only one shown him, whereas he might have purchased several had they been brought to his notice.

THE GERMAN CARD CLASSIFICATION

Some German book concerns, each with tremendous and unwieldy stocks of nearly a million volumes, attempt to keep track of their books by means of a card system. The volumes themselves are piled away flat, without any classification whatever, in warehouses; but each item is numbered consecutively, and is represented by one or more cards made out according to subject, author, and title, numbered to correspond with the item. These cards are filed alphabetically in the office of the establishment, and by consulting them it can be ascertained whether the desired book is in stock—provided the system is accurate; and the book itself may be procured—provided the customer has ample leisure to wait for it. Of course, in such an establishment, "browsing" is impossible.

To carry the beautiful science of such a system still further, "books wanted" are entered on cards of the same size, but of a different color, and these cards filed with the stock records. Thus the card of a book wanted and of a book in stock automatically come together. Such a system, however scientific it may be, becomes, thru its inevitable complications, obviously faulty if it is not properly cared for. And it can only be satisfactorily administered by a large staff of trained clerks. Such a staff could be maintained only where labor is cheap and preposterously efficient—in Germany, for instance. In this country only the wildest imagination would entertain the idea of such a system.

Anyone who has ever attempted to keep a card record of even a small but changing stock of books is aware of what a hopeless mass of details must be attended to if the record is to be accurate. With a card index one has in reality to keep in order two stocks—the books themselves and the cards as well.

Life is too short for the American bookseller to consider any but the simplest and most direct method of arranging stock—which happens to be the best method. The bookseller should always bear in mind that his first object is to sell books, his second to sell books, and his third to sell books. Any amount of cataloging, classification, system, and arrangement which does not directly contribute to the selling of books fails of its object and is labor thrown away. But it also happens that the best system of classification and arrangement of books is also the best and most direct method of selling them.

THE A. L. A. CLASSIFICATION

Let the books themselves be their own index. They must first be classified by subjects, using the ten or a dozen great general groups into which all books fall. The classifications specified by the American Library Association may be taken as a safe preliminary guide, altho, as these were formulated for the use of public libraries, the classifications must be somewhat modified and expanded to make them practical and applicable to a bookstore. The ten classes as given by the A. L. A. are as follows: GENERAL WORKS, PHILOSOPHY, RELIGION, SOCIOLOGY, PHILOLOGY, NATURAL SCIENCE, USEFUL ARTS, FINE ARTS, LITERATURE, HISTORY.

Under the division GENERAL WORKS come the sub-divisions: Bibliography, Reference, Journalism, Libraries, etc.

Under PHILOSOPHY would be grouped; Metaphysics, Psychology, Logic, Ethics, etc.

RELIGION (or Theology) would embrace the great subject of Christianity, and the minor ones of Mohammedanism, Judaism, Buddhism, etc.

SOCIOLOGY—a most important classification—would include Political Science, Law, Government, Education, Commerce, and Customs, embracing even Folk-lore, etc.

Under PHILOLOGY would come all books on all languages.

NATURAL SCIENCE (an extensive group) would necessarily have the sub-divisions of Mathematics, Astronomy, Physics, Chemistry, Geology, Biology, Ethnology, Botany, Zoology.

USEFUL ARTS: Medicine, Engineering, Agriculture, Domestic Economy, Business, Manufactures, Mechanic Trades, Building, etc.

FINE ARTS: Landscape Gardening, Architecture, Sculpture, Numismatics, Ceramics, Decoration, Painting and Engraving, Photography, Music and Amusements; the last-named with the sub-divisions: Games, Outdoor Sports (under which fall Athletics), Angling, Hunting, Horsemanship, etc.

The largest and broadest classification is naturally LITERATURE, embracing Poetry, Drama, Fiction, Essays or Belles-Lettres, Oratory, and Humor, each subdivided under the various nations—American, English, French, German, etc.

The group of HISTORY is hardly less broad than that of Literature. With HISTORY comes Travel, and both are subdivided according to the country and the period of which they treat.

Unless BIOGRAPHY is included in the groups with which it is most closely connected, it is necessary to form an eleventh classification, in which all biographical works are placed, alphabetically arranged according to subject instead of by author. It is generally advisable to segregate all BIOGRAPHY, as in a great many cases one would be in a quandary as to where to place the biography of a personage whose life was identified with many different lines of endeavor.

CLASSIFICATION SHOULD BE FLEXIBLE

The classification of stock may be extended or restricted, according to the ramifications and extent of the stock itself. Should a section become so large as to be unwieldy, it may be subdivided again and again. For example, in American book-shops the subject group of HISTORY is almost sure to become distended by a majority of works dealing with American life and history. It is usually desirable to place these under the great and important grouping AMERICANA. A sizeable collection of AMERICANA naturally divides itself into several departments: Local, Eastern, Southern, Western, or according to the various States, Indians, Revolution, Civil War (with its sub-section Confederate), Canada, Mexico, Colonial, Political, Genealogy, etc., ad infinitum.

Again, in some bookstores the subdivision of Fiction, especially Modern Fiction, under LITERATURE, is likely to exceed in bulk not only all the rest of LITERATURE, but possibly all the rest of the stock. It then becomes imperative to form a separate section of FICTION, which in turn is divisible into Adult and Juvenile, Standard and Modern, again divided into Books for Girls and Books for Boys.

However, unless a section grows so abnormally out of bounds as to render subdivision essential and alphabetizing confusing, it is best not to cut a classification into too small pieces. In the ordinary bookstore all the volumes dealing with Logic, Psychology, Metaphysics, Ethics, etc., may very well go under the broad heading PHILOSOPHY, in a single alphabetical arrangement.

In bookshops which cater to the collector and bibliophile it is necessary to separate the wheat from the chaff, so to speak. First editions of esteemed authors, under whatever classification they may belong, should be put into a section by themselves. Likewise books illustrated by favorite artists, colored plate books, press publications, association volumes, fine bindings, rarities, and incunabula should be segregated, regardless of subject matter.

Common sense and the exigencies of stock and space will at all times dictate the proper modifications to be made in arrangement and classification.

SECTIONS SHOULD BE PLAINLY LABELLED

When the stock has been properly assorted, conspicuous labels should be affixed to each shelf or section of shelves indicating the subject contained therein. These labels are not only of great assistance to the clerks, but also enable the customer who wishes to do his own searching to find his most delectable browsing ground. Responsible customers should always be given the freedom of the shop, without surveillance. A customer thus becomes your best salesman and will buy books which he never knew existed and which would not have been brought to his attention by a clerk.

It sometimes happens that a regular customer becomes much better acquainted with the stock than the employees. This brings to mind another axiom of the book-trade: Always learn from your customers. A collector who specializes on a certain subject unquestionably is in a position to know more about that subject than the bookseller can hope to know.

SUB-CLASSIFICATION BY AUTHOR

When all the books on hand have been separated according to subject it becomes necessary for quick and definite search to arrange the volumes in each department in strict alphabetical order according to author. Books whose authors are unknown may be placed in the same alphabet according to their titles. The arrangement by authors should hold in every subject except that of BIOGRAPHY, where the volumes ought to be placed according to the names of the personages treated, as previously advised, COLLECTIVE BIOGRAPHY leading the section.

BULKY VOLUMES AND SETS

At least two varieties of book stock take themselves out of the system of arbitrary arrangement. These are volumes of large size and sets. Folios, portfolios, royal quartos and other volumes of bulky dimensions obviously cannot be placed upon the shelves with the ordinary run of octavos and twelvemos. These "jumbos" must be kept in compartments made to accommodate them, but should be arranged in alphabetical order. No stock is so unwieldy and so soon lost sight of as these large volumes.

Set stock should be arranged alphabetically by author and placed upon the upper rows of shelves surrounding the store, provided that a priced and descriptive sample of each set, preferably the first volume, is kept for easy access in a separate section within reach. By stowing the sets on the upper shelves the problem of utilizing the least accessible portion of store space is solved to the best advantage. Generally speaking, all shelves should be low enough to be reached by a moderately tall person, tho this is not possible in many stores. The high shelves frequently become the undisturbed repositories of dust and "plugs," or "nightingales," as the French booksellers call them because they roost so high.

DON'T ALLOW STOCK ARRANGEMENT TO BECOME STALE TO CUSTOMERS

Arrangement of book stock by alphabet and subject advocated in this article does away automatically with idle sections of shelf space. Books from upper and lower shelves are called for with equal frequency. Of course, those shelves on the level range of a "browser's" eye are most frequently drawn from. For this reason, and also for the purpose of dusting and straightening up the books, it is advisable to change the sections often. To do so brightens wonderfully the appearance of a bookstore and adds directly to the sales, as the habitual "browser" is given new and unexplored pastures, while the clerks at the same time refresh their acquaintance with the stock.

One constantly repeated question is a source of continual despair to the bookseller; the daily query, "What new stock have you received?"—just as tho the inquirer were thoroughly conversant with every work in the place! In fact, he is not, nor is the clerk himself, nor the proprietor, for that matter. The way to satisfy the customer, to renew your own knowledge of your books, and—most important of all—to sell them, is to select at random from the entire stock every day or two a number of volumes to be placed on special tables in the center of the store, among recent acquisitions. The spaces in the shelves made vacant by sales are in turn recruited from these tables. Thus the stock is kept in constant circulation. An axiom in all lines of business is that the only profitable stock is that which moves, and in the book business this is not only theoretically but also literally true.

To arrange books alphabetically is an easy matter, requiring only patience and eyesight; to classify them by subject naturally requires an ordinary amount of intelligence; to do both well is by no means difficult and brings a thousand-fold return in time and money for the labor and pains spent in arrangement. To a true bookman such work is a keen and positive pleasure. It may be objected that the majority of untrained employees, not being true bookmen, are incompetent to arrange stock properly as outlined above. Such employees, for their own good and for the welfare of the book business, would better seek some other line of employment.

On the other hand, anyone with an aptitude for reading learns instinctively from the mere handling of books how to classify and arrange them. The book business is a liberal education in itself. Carlyle's definition of a true university as a collection of good books applies forcibly and pointedly to a book-shop.

As to the selling of books—that is a different matter—that is a gift of the gods. Many of the best bookmen are poor salesmen, and some of the best book salesmen are not bookmen at all. But every salesman in a bookstore must have either in himself or in conjunction with him a knowledge of the stock, which knowledge can be obtained only by a systematic orderly arrangement.

These observations apply to every retail establishment where books are sold; but they apply with especial emphasis to shops dealing in rare and out-of-print books, where the particular item desired is the one sought for not alone by the transient public but by the advertisements of "Books Wanted" regularly listed in the trade journals. To give assiduous attention to the reporting of such items as may be at hand is a lucrative method of increasing sales and decreasing stock, besides being an excellent medium of publicity. But a thoro, expeditious and intelligent answering of these advertisements for "Books Wanted" can be facilitated only if the stock is arranged by subject and alphabeted.

BE ORDERLY; BE NOT TOO ORDERLY

One word more. Do not let gaps in the bookshelves or occasional leaning volumes worry you. Such gaps are evidences of progress. Nothing is more discouraging to the familiarity which a customer should feel in a book-shop than to see all the shelves and tables in such prim and mathematically nice alignment that he is afraid to "browse" among the books for fear of disarranging them. Thus, as a corollary to this essay, may be added a paraphrase of Napoleon's maxim: Be orderly; be orderly; be not too orderly.

Yet, since order is heaven's first law, and since efficiency is the watchword of modern business, it must follow that to obtain the maximum results in that most beatific of earth's callings, the only one of which the stock in trade is the illimitable production of the world's intellect, the noble profession of bookselling, the keynote and the secret of success must be the proper arrangement of the stock.

TAX ON ADVERTISING PROPOSED AS SUBSTITUTE FOR ZONE PLAN FOR SECOND-CLASS MAIL

ALTHO the Senate Finance Committee struck out last week the House increases on second-class mail matter under a zone system, it reopened the question of increased revenue from newspapers and magazines on Monday of this week by receiving the new proposal of Senator Hardwick, of Georgia, backed by the Post Office Department.

The Hardwick amendment provides for a higher rate on pages of second-class matter containing advertising matter than on pages containing reading matter. It provides that the existing rate of 1 cent a pound shall remain the rate charged hereafter for "the portion of the publication devoted to reading matter other than advertising." A sliding scale of increases on the advertising sections would be adjusted as follows:

Until June 30, 1918, 3 cents a pound.

July 1, 1918, to June 30, 1919, 6 cents a pound.

July 1, 1919, and thereafter, 8 cents a pound.

According to Senator Hardwick, $20,000,000 of revenue would be raised by this plan.

It was explained by Chairman Simmons that under the terms of the Hardwick amendment the Post Office authorities would be compelled to take each publication and go over it page by page with a measuring stick, and after determining the amount of space devoted to "pure reading" and the amount to advertising calculate on a weight basis the exact chargeable fractions at the two different rates. This would be simple enough, he said, with periodicals which do not combine reading matter and advertisements on the same page, but by no means so simple a mechanical problem where the publication prints reading matter and advertising matter on almost every page in variable ratios.

Senator Hardwick's proposal came up for discussion again on Thursday, but definite action was postponed pending a general conference Saturday night, at which Chairman Simmons and other members will meet representatives of the publishers and of the Post Office Department.

Should the Hardwick plan as offered or modified be adopted, Chairman Simmons stated that the 2 per cent tax upon all advertising previously approved by the Senate Committee would be changed.

The entire provision of the House for a flat ten per cent tax on all imports was struck out by the committee.

FRENCH CERCLE DE LA LIBRAIRIE CONDUCTING BOOKSELLING COURSE FOR WOMEN

OWING to the marked increase in the number of women employed in the bookshops of France during the war, the Cercle de la Librairie has inaugurated a special course in bookselling for women. It amounts practically to a condensation of the regular forty-hour course for men given in Paris from 1909 to the outbreak of the war. This longer course extended over two years, the first thirteen lessons being devoted to the technique of book manufacture, the next six to a study of the various sets, series and individual volumes in a bookseller's stock; the first thirteen lessons of the second year to book salesmanship and bookstore economy, and the final eight lessons to a study of French literature from the bookseller's standpoint. The shorter course for women omits entirely the first section, that devoted to book manufacture, and condenses the rest of the instruction into ten lessons. Classes are held from 1.30 to 2.30 each Saturday, beginning May 5 and ending July 7, as follows:

I.—History of the book and a general survey of literature from the Middle Ages to the present day (3 lessons).

The chief characteristics of the literature of each period essential to the bookseller will be briefly outlined.

II.—The function of the publisher (2 lessons).

From manuscript to completed book (1 lesson).

Publisher and author: copyright, publication, catalogs, publicity, selling arrangements (1 lesson).

III.—The function of the bookseller (3 lessons).

Stocking the bookstore: the stock, keeping posted on stock and new books, trade bibliographies and helps in buying (1 lesson).

Orders, terms, shipments (1 lesson).

Selling books: the buying public, publicity methods, the approach, closing the sale (1 lesson).

IV.—Selling special classes of books (2 lessons).

Fiction, standard and classical works, scientific books, law, medicine, second-hand books, and periodicals.

M. Lecène, one of the instructors in the regular course, is conducting the women's course. Both the executive committee of the Cercle de la Librairie and the Syndicat des Editeurs (Publishers' Association) are back of the course, tho it is in the immediate charge of a special committee on book-trade training.

TAKING THE BOOKSTORE TO THE CONSUMER—TWO NEW VENTURES OF THE WOMAN'S BOOKSHOP, N. Y.

AN interesting example of how it pays to take the bookshop to the bookbuyer is afforded by the temporary bookstore which has been established close by the Sunday tabernacle at 168th Street and Broadway in New York City. Opened at the beginning of the Billy Sunday campaign early in April by the Y. W. C. A. Woman's Bookshop at 600 Lexington Avenue, the branch shop has been taking in several hundred dollars every week since. It is located in the front of the big Y. W. C. A. cafeteria, and the crowds during rush hours—11.30 to 1.30 and 3 to 5.30—literally overrun the store. The shop is open from 11.30 a. m. to 10.30 p. m. daily, except Monday, when no meetings are held in connection with the revival. One clerk in the morning and three during the rest of the day are required to handle the trade. Incidentally, women form the majority of the afternoon customers, while men predominate at night.

One-third of the books sold in the shop are Bibles. There are special exhibits of the Oxford Bibles and of the American Standard Version, and the New York Bible Society is displaying Bibles in fifty-three languages. While 75,000 Bibles are being given away to "trail hitters" in connection with the revival, and no one need go without a Bible for want of money, thanks to the Bible Society, there is still a surprising demand for expensive Bibles in pigskin and other bindings, and the Bible publishers state that from their standpoint the revival branch is proving very remunerative. Outside the regular editions of the Bible and complete Testaments, the Gospel of John and the Spanish and Slovak Bibles are among the shop's "best sellers."

Other books sold include devotional books, Bible studies, Bible histories, books for teachers of boys and girls, books by such ministers and writers as Van Dyke, Fosdick, Jowett, Speers, Hugh Black and Billy Sunday. Many pamphlets and religious gift books are also sold. Altho there is some demand for more expensive books, the greatest number of sales, exclusive of Bibles, are the cheap ten and twenty-five-cent booklets.

A somewhat unorganized attempt is being made to keep the names and addresses of ministers and others who would be interested in receiving future publications of a religious character. But one has only to witness a "rush hour" to realize how difficult it is for the harried clerks to do more than answer questions and "make 'change."

Another branch of the Woman's Bookshop, only three weeks old and still a good deal of an experiment, occupies a front window of the Y. W. C. A. Cafeteria on West 36th Street in New York City. This branch was opened in response to repeated demands from those who crowd the Cafeteria each day. Inexpensive editions of fiction, poetry and history are especially sought after by this trade. Saleswomen from the central shop on Lexington Avenue are substituting at present, but plans are being made for a regular saleswoman, for new shelves, increased stock and a circulating library.

The central shop, the Woman's Bookshop proper, in the Y. W. C. A. Building, organized in November of last year, is growing rapidly, and, altho mail orders still furnish the bulk of its business, the local trade is increasing. The shop is finding its quarters more and more cramped, and with the newly organized Woman's Press in action this fall it will probably overflow a nearby reading room. The Woman's Bookshop and its branches are entirely run by women, even down to the shipping department and office "boy."

To-day the cost of doing business calls for more scientific ways of getting customers.—Hodgkin: "Manual of Successful Storekeeping."

OBITUARY NOTES

COLONEL WILLIAM JAMES LAMPTON, journalist and poet, died on May 30 in New York City in his fifty-eighth year. He was a well known contributor of satirical humorous verse on current topics to the daily papers. Colonel Lampton laid claim to being the father of vers libre, asserting that he had begun to write in that style of verse which he called "Yawp" as early as 1890. He was the author of several volumes, including "Yawps and Other Things," "Confessions of a Husband," "The Trolley Car and the Lady," 1908; "Mrs. Brown's Opinions," 1886; "Judge Waxem's Pocket Book of Politics," 1908, and "Tame Animals I Have Known," 1912.

REV. FORBES ALEXANDER PHILLIPS, English novelist and dramatist, who wrote under the pseudonym of "Athol Forbes," died on May 29 at Great Yarmouth, England, at the age of fifty-one. He was the author of the following books: "Some Mysteries of the Passion," 1893; "Gorleston and Its Parish Church," 1894; "Cassock and Comedy," 1898; "A Son of Rimmon," 1899; "Odd Fish," 1901; "If Love Were All," 1902; "The Romance of Smuggling," 1909; "Is Death the End?" 1915. Plays: "Her First Proposal," produced in Dublin; "Church or Stage?" produced by Mrs. Brown-Potter; "Lord Danby's Affair"; "A Maid of France," 1905; "When It Was Dark," 1906.

THE MCGRAW-HILL PUBLISHING Co. has subscribed for $100,000 of Liberty Bonds.

"COAST ARTILLERY DRILL REGULATIONS" is a recent addition to the Military Publishing Co.'s list of texts for soldiers.

IT IS REPORTED that the New York Society for the Suppression of Vice is warning New York City dealers not to sell Wedekind's "The Awakening of Spring."

SOME 3500 PACKAGES of educational and scientific books consigned from Germany to educational institutions in the United States were recently released by the British Prize Court.

"THE DERELICT AND OTHER STORIES" by Phyllis Bottome, whose "Dark Tower" of last year gave such a vivid picture of Switzerland in winter, will be published by the Century Co. in June.

LEON DOMINIAN finds a working basis for treaty making in the European muddle in his investigation of "Language and Nationality in Europe," just published by Henry Holt. This is the second volume in a new series issued under the auspices of the American Geographical Society.

"THE ADVENTURES OF A WOMAN HOBO" by Ethel Lynn, M.D., is the curiosity provoking title of an account of a trip from Chicago to San Francisco by a woman physician and her husband who were out of health. The couple tramped and "biked" on an old-fashioned tandem. The book will be published by George H. Doran Co. on June 5.

BLANCHE FISHER WRIGHT, who illustrated "The Real Mother Goose," has also made pictures in color for the Goosey, Goosey Gander Series announced by Rand, McNally & Co. "Little Jack Horner," "Tommy Tittlemouse," "Polly Flinders" and "Our Child's Favorites" are the titles in this series for little people.

ESPECIALLY TIMELY just now for Americans is "Britain's Civilian Volunteers," the story of British voluntary aid detachment work in the Great War, by Thekla Bowser, a serving sister of the Order of St. John of Jerusalem, recently published by Moffat, Yard & Co. The book tells of the patriotic services in the factories, hospitals and rest stations of those debarred by age or sex from fighting.

WITH THE TALISMAN of a letter to von Hindenburgh himself, J. M. De Beaufort, correspondent of the London Daily Telegraph, obtained access to the German military headquarters. In "Behind the German Veil" (Dodd, Mead) he tells of his interviews with the most eminent men in the military, political and industrial world of Germany and of his visits to the German naval bases at Kiel and Wilhelmshaven.

"HOW TO MAKE THE GARDEN PAY," a manual for the intensive cultivation of home vegetable gardens, is published to-day by the Houghton Mifflin Co. The book is by Edward Morrison and Charles Thomas Brues, Assistant Professor of Economic Entomology at Harvard. It gives practical information as to what to plant in a small garden plot so that the greatest possible quantity may be produced.

THE MACMILLAN Co. announces an important addition to the American Social Progress Series, "The City Worker's World in America," by Mrs. Mary K. Simkhovitch, social economist and head of Greenwich House, New York City. Its purpose is "to furnish a plain description of the facts of the city dweller's life together with some indications of the evolutionary process going on at the city's heart."

IN AN ARTICLE in a recent issue of System on "How We Practice Business Good Manners," E. M. Statler, head of the well-known string of Statler hotels, devotes a few paragraphs to the care and money the Statler hotels put into the selection of their libraries. These libraries, far from consisting of so many dollars' worth of "assorted books," are carefully selected, volume by volume, from the various fields of fiction, travel books, business books, technical books, with an eye to meeting the actual wants of a widely different lot of guests. This spring the hotels have spent some little money in having their libraries cataloged and fully annotated. Every catalog entry has a note summarizing the character and scope of the book. No charge whatever is made for the use of books, and a catalog is placed in each guest room.

AMONG TIMELY MCGRAW-HILL BOOKS on engineering and war are "The Engineer in War" (1916), by Maj. P. S. Bond, Corps of Engineers, U. S. A.; "Manufacture of Artillery Ammunition" (1917), by the editorial staff of the American Machinist, developed at the request of the Preparedness Committee of the Naval Consulting Board; "Topographical Drawing" (June 1917), by Colonel E. R. Stuart, professor of drawing, United States Military Academy; "Shrapnel and Other War Material" (1916), a reprint of articles that appeared in the American Machinist during 1914 and 1915, describing methods of producing shells, guns and other war material in the United States and Canada; "Wireless Telegraphy" (1915), by J. Zenneck, authorized translation of the authority in German schools and in the military and naval service; "Practical Uses of the Wave Meter in Wireless Telegraphy," by Lieut. J. O. Mauborgne, instructor, Army Signal School, Ft. Leavenworth; "Principles of Wireless Telegraphy," by Prof. George W. Pierce, Harvard University; and "United States Artillery Ammunition" (June 1917), by Ethan Viall, managing editor, American Machinist.

THE CONTROVERSY over the advisability of substituting Roman for the Gothic printing characters employed in Germany still goes on even in the midst of war, according to a Berlin cable. If Roman characters were used instead of the German, according to the Tageblatt, there would be many more students of German literature, and German ideas would become better known and more appreciated by the rest of the world. It is also contended by the modernists that the so-called German characters have been developed from the Gothic, which would give them a French origin. The final argument is that Roman characters are more easily read and less trying to the eyes than the somewhat twisted German characters. On this last point Dr. Schackwitz of the Physiological Institute of Kiel has been brought forward in the face of the hosts of opticians who have condemned the Gothic characters: he has made experiments which, he says, prove that while for the reading of a fixed amount of printed matter the Roman characters require 24,500 movements of the eyes, the same document in German characters can be read with only 17,000 movements.

THIS WOULD CERTAINLY SEEM to be the psychological time to push in every possible way the sale of French books in this country, whether belles lettres or more particularly the outstanding books on the war which reveal the heart of France and of her poilus. The Société d'Exportation des Editions Françaises, the organization of thirty leading French publishers formed in Paris in February of this year to push sales of French books overseas, is accordingly making an especial effort at the present time to get into direct communication with booksellers in this country who have started or would like to start a French department. The plans of these French publishers include the furnishing of catalogs and co-operative lists for distribution by dealers, the supplying of trained French book salesmen in certain cases to take charge of French departments, and even as a future possibility the inauguration of central jobbing stock rooms in this country and of regular travelers to visit the trade.

AN EXCELLENT NEW SERIES of popular reprints has appeared this spring under the imprint of a new publishing house, Boni & Liveright, of 105 W. 40th Street, New York. The aim of the publishers is to build up a standard series of unquestionably worth while reprints that lie between the classics in Everyman's Library and the new fiction of the Grosset & Dunlap and A. L. Burt reprints. To date the series includes Oscar Wilde's "Dorian Gray," Strindberg's "Married," Kipling's "Soldiers Three," Stevenson's "Treasure Island," H. G. Wells' "War in the Air," Ibsen's "Plays" ("Ghosts," "An Enemy of the People" and "A Doll's House"), Anatole France's "The Red Lily," De Maupassant's "Mademoiselle Fifi," Nietzsche's "Thus Spake Zarathustra," Dostoyevsky's "Poor People," Maeterlinck's "A Miracle of St. Antony" (including also "Pelleas and Melisande," "The Death of Tintagiles," "Alladine and Palomides," "Interior" and "The Intruder"), and Schopenhauer's "Studies in Pessimism." Five new volumes will be published this month. The series is printed on a good quality paper in a clear 10-point type, bound in a handsome limp croft leather for which the publishers have secured the rights to the entire supply for book purposes, and each volume is stamped in gold on back and side and enclosed in a two-color wrapper.

EVELEIGH NASH, the English publisher, was recently assessed £250 damages in a libel suit brought by a Mrs. Ffoulkes, a former "literary ghost" in his employ and at one time his partner. Plaintiff had "helped" various titled personages write their memoirs which Nash had published, including, "My Recollections" by the Countess of Cardigan, "My Own Story," the life story of the then Crown Princess of Saxony, "Things I Can Tell," by Lord Rossmore, and "My Past," by the Countess Marie Larische, favorite niece of the late Empress of Austria. Relations between Nash and Mrs. Ffoulkes became somewhat strained and the latter arranged to have her own memoirs brought out by Cassell. Nash protested against the publication of this book so vigorously that the court held he had overstepped the bounds of fair comment. "She claims to be the author of several volumes of memoirs which I have published," Nash wrote the rival publisher as his reason for objecting to the publication. "The fact is that I paid Mrs. Ffoulkes to take down from dictation the material which the authors desired to include in their memoirs, but I could not permit her to claim the authorship for the mere reason that it would be practically admitting that the memoirs in question are bogus, or partially bogus, in character, which they are not, and which would not only be damaging to me, but would greatly lessen the value of the properties. It is an almost indescribable breach of faith on her part, and if people who have received fees for helping well-known persons to write their memoirs are going to give them away in this public fashion, then I do not know what things are coming to. Imagine Lord Rossmore going into the Carlton Club and being greeted by a friend somewhat in this manner: 'Hello, Derry, is it true that you did not write your memoirs yourself? I hear a woman did them for you!' During the course of the trial it was stated that the various memoirs were not dictated to Mrs. Ffoulkes, but merely related to her and later written by her

Under the headings of "BOOKS WANTED" and "BOOKS FOR SALE" book-trade subscribers are given under their own names five nonpareil lines (exclusive of address) free advertising for specified books, not more than one title to the line, in any issue except special numbers, but not exceeding one hundred lines a year, a maximum of fifty lines under "Books Wanted" and fifty lines under "Books for Sale," and if over five lines are sent for either department in only one issue, or fifty lines for each department within the calendar year, the excess is at ten cents a line. Bills for this service will be rendered monthly. Objectionable books are excluded so far as they are noted.

In answering, please state edition, condition and price, including postage or express charges. Houses that will deal exclusively on a cash-on-delivery basis should put [Cash] after their firm name. The appearance of advertisements in this column, or elsewhere in the WEEKLY does not furnish a guarantee of credit. While it endeavors to safeguard its columns by withholding the privileges of advertising should occasion arise, booksellers should take usual precautions in extending credit.

"Books Wanted" must be designated by actual title, not by "any."

Write your wants plainly, on one side of the sheet only. Illegible "wants" are ignored. The WEEKLY is not responsible for errors. Parties with whom there is no account must pay in advance.

Under "HELP WANTED" or for other small undisplayed advertisements, the charge is 10 cents a nonpareil line. No reduction for repeated matter. Count seven words to the line.

OUR FLAG in Verse and Prose

June 14 is Flag Day. This day and all our other patriotic holidays will have a new, significant meaning this year. Here is a book to keep the fires of patriotism and courage burning brightly. Robert H. Schaufler, who compiled "Our Flag in Verse and Prose," has included in his book all the best things ever written about our flag. The story of the making of the first flag in 1777; how "The Star Spangled Banner" came to be written and other incidents of historical interest are given, together with many stories and poems for reading or declamation. Programs for Flag Day exercises are also given.

Reference List of New Publications

Recorded in MAY, 1917

This Reference List includes and classifies all books entered in the annotated Weekly Record during the past month, together with additional titles not therein listed, covering law and medicine, many government documents, university publications, pamphlets, and books of limited character. All works are here entered under (1) author, in Clarendon type, anonymous books having Clarendon type for the first word; (2) title in Roman; (3) subject-heading in CAPS and SMALL CAPS; (4) name of series in Italics. Under subject entries asterisks (*) designate books previously entered in the Weekly Record, in most cases with descriptive annotation.

A colon after initial designates the most usual given name, as: A: Augustus; B: Benjamin; C: Charles; D: David; E: Edward; F: Frederick; G: George; H: Henry; I: Isaac; J: John; L: Louis; N: Nicholas; P: Peter; R: Richard; S: Samuel; T: Thomas; W: William.

For books received sizes are given in caps, Q, O, D, etc.; for books not received sizes are given in Roman numerals, 4°, 8°, 12°, etc. Prices are added except when not supplied by publisher or obtainable only on specific request. Where not specified the binding is cloth.

Those desiring to learn the entire publishing output of the month in any one field should look under one of the following MAIN HEADINGS:

PHILOSOPHY	MEDICINE	LITERATURE
RELIGION AND THEOLOGY	AGRICULTURE	POETRY
SOCIOLOGY	HOUSEHOLD ECONOMICS	DRAMA
LAW	BUSINESS	FICTION
EDUCATION	ENGINEERING, TECHNOLOGY	BIOGRAPHY
PHILOLOGY	FINE ARTS	GEOGRAPHY AND TRAVEL
SCIENCE	GAMES, SPORTS, AMUSEMENTS	HISTORY

Besides the titles listed under each of these headings cross reference is made from each to a limited number of cognate headings which collectively give all the new publications of the month in the given subject or group of subjects.

Inquirers looking for books on a specific topic should look under the general subject to which that topic belongs, i. e., GEOLOGY rather than SILURIAN PERIOD; MATHEMATICS rather than CALCULUS; ECONOMICS rather than WAGES. Books regarding specific Religious denominations, countries and persons, however, should still be sought for under their individual names.

Now is the Time to Build up a French Department

COME TO HEADQUARTERS FOR YOUR STOCK

WITH the aim of helping booksellers in the United States and elsewhere to sell more French books, we, the undersigned French publishers, have organized the Société d'Exportation des Editions Françaises. We want to establish direct relations thru this organization with American booksellers—for our mutual profit. We aim to issue a co-operative bulletin of our new books to be furnished dealers at a nominal cost; to send over trained French salesmen to establish or build up French departments in American retail stores; to keep in touch with retailers thru regular travelers or other methods; and, as soon as the trade warrants, to establish a central depository in the United States to facilitate the stocking of French books.

THE SORRY TALE

A STORY OF THE TIME OF CHRIST

Edited and with a brief introduction by CASPER S. YOST

About 700 pages, probable price; $1.90 net.

"Patience Worth," the invisible author whose work was described in "Patience Worth: A Psychic Mystery," has written a story of the time of Christ.

It is the story of a son of Tiberius Caesar by a Greek slave, a woman of great beauty and of noble blood. After a time she is discarded and gives birth to a child outside the walls of Bethlehem, on the same night that Christ is born within the walls. In the bitterness of her passion, the mother names him Hate. The two great characters of the story, Christ and Hate, come into contact from time to time in the tale, to meet finally on Calvary. Hate is the thief on the Cross.

"The Sorry Tale" is a story of emotion, relieved by the beauty and tenderness of its treatment, the poetic quality of its prose and the humor of some of its scenes.

The story is filled with action. It is a tale of princes and paupers, of palaces and hovels, of cities and fields. It brings into close view the historical characters of Tiberius, the Herods, Pilate, Peter, and particularly and dominantly, Jesus Christ.

All of the story was communicated through Mrs. John H. Curran of St. Louis, in the same manner as the other productions of this personality.

Wm. Marion Reedy says in Reedy's Mirror:

I have seen the complete manuscript. This is the most remarkable piece of literature I have ever read. I have no hesitation in saying that this production—I ignore any religious claims for it and I discount the adventitious interest of the manner of its presentation—is a world's literary marvel.
